COW DIP—Vickie Joe Ladner, right, owner of the Ladner Farm, explains cow dip procedure at his ranch to members attending the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock Farm Bureau and Hancock Extension Service's Farm City Tour Thursday. Ladner had a truck loaded with cattle just purchased in Florida unloaded for the group to see some of the procedures used in his modern cattle operation. Visitors saw branding, shots being given, worming, dipping and other operations necessary for best cattle. The cattle unloaded Thursday were to leave Friday for Texas and some were scheduled for Ladner's Wyoming operations next spring. During 1980 Ladner said his production in soybeans was 200,000 bushels. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Common Cause cites Compretta, Smith

Common Cause - Mississippi has passed tabulations in seven House and six Senate votes that were taken during the 1981 Regular Session of the Mississippi Legislature.

According to Jere Nash, state director for the public interest lobbying organization, "these votes are an indication of legislators' willingness or unwillingness to improve government performance and make the actions of public officials more open and accountable to the voters."

The tabulation includes votes on changes to improve the state's open meetings law, on enactment of a state public records law, on funding for the Mississippi Ethics Commission, on establishment of a county-unit system for expenditure of county road improvement money, and on reform of the justice court judge system.

According to Common Cause, the Legislature's performance during the regular session was mixed.

The 174-member body adopted significant changes to Mississippi's 1975 open meetings law that will require all state and local public bodies to hold most of their meetings open to the public and the press.

But the other major government reform issue went down to defeat again this year," stated Nash, "Mississippians still do not have a law guaranteeing them access to the records of public officials in this state. Thanks to the House of Representatives, we will have to wait another year for a public records law."

The Legislature took the first step in reforming the present 1963 county boards of supervisors' system money to build and maintain their county roads by passing legislation that will require the boards to adopt what is called the county-unit system; unless they vote, in an open meeting and on the record, not to do so.

Currently, each supervisor is allocated an equal amount of money to spend in his or her beat or district, rather than the board, acting as a unit, spending the money throughout the county where the need is greatest.

"A simple statistic will magnify the incredible amount of money that is wasted away by supervisors under the current system. It costs more money to maintain and construct roads in Mississippi counties, per registered vehicle, than in any other state. County supervisors in our state are maintaining a system of funding road building that is costing taxpayer dearly, and the Legislature finally took the first step during the 1981 Session to

Man charged with fondling

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A 76-year-old Bay St. Louis resident has been charged with nine counts of fondling, according to Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Murrell James Smith, 104 Francisco Ct., Bay St. Louis was arrested Thursday by the sheriff and investigator Delbert Sessy and charged with nine counts of fondling.

Smith posted a $10,000 bond and is awaiting a preliminary hearing before Justice Court Judge Bruce Necaise scheduled for Aug. 5.

Peterson reports the Hancock jail is overflowing with additional state prisoners.

Peterson stated, "Friday morning we had to get some more cots from the Civil Defense as we are housing 30 inmates."

The facility which was constructed in the mid 30's was built for 15 prisoners and it now has 15 being held for the state.

Several weeks ago the Hancock facility had to borrow cots from the Civil Defense.

This week three state prisoners were added in the Hancock facilities: James Gibson, sentenced to five years for grand larceny and parole violation; Donnie Stroud, who pled guilty to burglary charges and is awaiting sentencing; and Ronald Joseph Henry, sentenced for parole violation, according to the sheriff.

Two Waveland prisoners were added to the population Thursday night when City Judge Lucien Gex sentenced Mack C. Stroud to six months in the county jail and Joe L. Goodman to three months. Both were sentenced for possession of stolen goods and burglary.

Peterson said Gibson, who was sentenced Friday, was the prisoner who had escaped from Hancock General Hospital Wednesday night while receiving treatment.

"He turned himself in Thursday," Peterson allowed.

Bay Council stymied in 'emergency' try

By BRENT MACEY

The Bay St. Louis City Council Thursday again decided to recess before declaring its intent to extend city water service to some estimated six homes on Old Spanish Trail an emergency situation.

Councilman Sheldon Seuzaneau had informed the council during their regular meeting Monday that homes between Turner Street and Bouslog Street on Old Spanish Trail were connected to a private well.

He said the owner of that well, Leopold Parker of Bay St. Louis, was informed by a resident connected to the well that the water was contaminated.

He said Parker plans to shut the well off and had given the residents a five day notice.

"If there is one thing nobody can go without, that's water," Seuzaneau said, and motioned the situation be declared an emergency.

The council tabled that motion and recessed the meeting until Edward Favre, city clerk, could determine if enough funds were available to extend an eight inch city water main to the homes—an estimated $6,500 expense.

Favre Friday informed the council the city did have the money.

However, Friday Councilman James Thrifflie questioned if the water is contaminated or if it is just hearsay.

"I am in agreement that we have a serious problem but as of this time we have no evidence or statement from the owner that the well will be shut off or any letter from the health department saying the water is contaminated."

No written records could be recalled by any of the councilmen or mayor.

Thrifflie recommended council give the problem a thorough look before deciding to spend that amount of money.

Councilmen Harry Farve then motioned to recess the meeting until some written documents can be produced.

In other business, the council approved hiring Don Murray, of Broadway and Seal Engineers of Picayune, to inspect emergency gas repairs on Julia street at a rate no greater than $12 an hour.

Justice judge trial date changes anger witnesses

By BRENT MACEY

Confusion over a trial date for Justice Court Judge Lloyd Anderson, accused of embezzling $155 by virtue of his office, has angered a number of witnesses subpoenaed from out of state three different times to testify.

The trial is now set for Tuesday July 28.

Some of the witnesses have appeared twice at the Hancock County Courthouse to testify, only to be told they would be notified again of the next trial date.

Deputy Circuit Clerk Alfred Snyder said some of those witnesses traveled over 150 miles from Louisiana and Alabama.

Initially the trial was set for the April term of the Hancock County Circuit Court, however, that trial was postponed until July 21.

Circuit Clerk Henry Otis said several witnesses appeared on the April date because some did not have phones or they had moved and could not be contacted.

He noted contacting the witnesses is the district attorney's responsibility.

The witnesses were subpoenaed a second time for the July term, this time for July 21. The problem again arose when Otis received news the trial date had again been postponed until July 28.

Snyder said he was notified by Circuit Court Administrator Gayle Parker the afternoon of July 20.

He said he later found out that District Attorney Albert Necaise had postponed the trial date.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department also learned of the trial date change the same day, Snyder said. Although attempts were made by that department to contact the witnesses, six witnesses showed up for the trial Tuesday morning.

Snyder said some of the witnesses were mad.

Gloria Tartavouille, a secretary for the Sheriff's Department, said, "One guy said he was going to punch the DA in the nose."

In other action during the now two week old Circuit Court term, Portia Golden, 39, of Watts Street in Bay St. Louis pleaded guilty to two charges of false pretense, one charge of attempted false pretense, and one charge of fraudulent use of food stamps.

Golden admitted defrauding Union Labor Life Insurance Company of $3,209 in March of 1981 and $4,681 in April of 1981 by claiming hospital bills which were never incurred.

Golden pleaded guilty to attempting to defraud the insurance company an additional $6,270 in May of 1981.

She also admitted to fraudulent use of $43 of food stamps acquired by not reporting correct income.

Sentencing was postponed until a presentence report is submitted to Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos.

Also during the July term, a settlement was reached in a civil case involving a law suit filed by Terrell Bourgeois, owner of Waveland Dixie Bakery, against Our Shopping Center in Waveland.

Of 42 indictments handed down by the Hancock County Grand Jury during its one week session, 21 indictments have been served.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said he felt all other indictments except two will be served when the accused are arraigned June 31.

Those people already indicted include: Jay Bee Cunningham charged with the kidnapping, armed robbery, and rape of the same woman May 30; Jack Berry, charged with burglary of $225 worth of valuables at Trapani's

Waveland board views no parking ordinance for Beach Boulevard

By BRENT MACEY

The Waveland Board of Aldermen Wednesday directed Lucien Gex, board attorney, to draft an ordinance making parking within 50 feet of street intersections on Beach Boulevard illegal.

The board agreed to have "No parking. Vehicles will be towed signs posted and to have that ordinance enforced."

The action came after two Waveland residents complained of weekend visitors along the coast who "come with a dirty tee shirt, a $10 bill and don't change either the whole time they're here."

Joseph Viguierle of Nicholson Avenue related problems he is having with vacationing visitors who leave the beach area after the weekend is over but neglect to take beer bottles trash and other debris with them.

He said a van carrying five-foot speakers parked out side his house during the July 4th weekend and played music full volume from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.

"The beach was absolutely packed with bulls and loud mouths," Viguierle said.

He stated an old woman was knocked down that weekend and a brawl would have broken out if he had not informed the youths that police were on their way.

In addition, Viguierle complained of the dangers involved with the current

Mississippi Democrats back Headstart funding

The Executive Committee of the Democratic Party of Mississippi has unanimously voted to ask the U.S. Congress to restore funding to the $650 million Head Start Program.

The Committee has approved a resolution that will be sent to members of Mississippi's congressional delegation.

The resolution pledges that Committee members will use "personal, financial and our persuasion within the U.S. Congress to the extent necessary, to procure the continued funding of this completely successful, worthy and necessary program."

The resolution noted that "many Mississippi families depend upon the Head Start program to help provide early childhood development for their children."

The program presently serves 26,853 children in Mississippi and the resolution stated "touches thousands of families and provides millions of dollars for the Mississippi economy annually."

Funding for the Head Start program is presently pending in a joint House-Senate conference committee studying the budget for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

NASA not responsible for cracks in school

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County School Board heard a report submitted by Harlin Hill, federal programs coordinator for the district, concerning a National Aeronautics Space Administration engineer's inspection of cracks in the walls at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School.

The school board had requested that inspection to determine if the cracks may have developed due to vibrations caused by testing at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

Hill's report stated the engineer attributed the cracks to erosion around the building, settling, and the normal wear of a building between 10 and 12 years-old.

Hill recommended the board not consider any law suits against the NASA and noted the proof of the damage would fall on the school district if they did.

Woodrow Ladner, board member, said he would wait until John Mykolyk, school architect, examines the building and presents his report.

"Naturally he (NASA's architect) is not going to find them at fault," Woodrow Ladner said.

In other business, the board:

—Approved hiring Dick Ray Kinser as assistant principal at Hancock North Central for the 1981-82 school year after meeting with Kinser for over an hour in executive session.

—Adopted resolutions commending Leslie Stevenson, former Hancock North Central assistant principal, for his "unselfish and untiring" work at the school; Roland Ladner, former Hancock North Central varsity basketball coach, for his long years of service; and Hancock County Supervisors Roger Dale Ladner and Bert Courge for their support and work around county school campuses.

—Adopted a resolution requesting the Mississippi State Highway Department place a caution light at the intersection of Hwy. 603 and Cuevas Town Road.

—Approved the purchase of two antennas, a receiver and a recorder for Hancock North Central High School and elementary school for $1,327 so students will be able to view the Educational Television Network. The Mississippi Educational Television Authority will pay an additional $442 in matching funds for the equipment.

—Agreed to have Joseph Gex, board attorney, review the 1981-82 Central High School Manual before adopting the manual.

—Approved a motion by Johnny Banks, board member, to see how much money the school district has paid the Mississippi Forestry Commission in 1981. Some questions arose as to payment of a two bills submitted by the commission for marking 16th section boundary lines in Pearlinton. Louis Ladner said the bills should be presented through Terry Randolph, 18th Section land coordinator for the district. However, the bill came directly through the commission and members were not sure if the marking had actually been done or if the bill was only for "actual services" the only payment which the school board is required to pay by law.

Deep ocean photos on exhibit at NSTL

The National Space Technology Laboratories' Visitors Center is now featuring a joint NAVOCEANO and NORDA exhibit entitled "Deep Ocean Photography."

The exhibit consists of large photo murals of the Gillis Seamount, an extinct undersea volcano in the Atlantic Ocean, and also includes a three-dimensional model of the seamount and the camera equipment used by photographer Walter Jahn of NORDA. According to Charlie Suit of NAVOCEANO, the exhibit will be on display at the Visitors Center for approximately six months.

The photos of the seamount provide evidence of its origin and reveal a concentration of coarse granular material and ripple marks while other areas appear to be swept free of sediment.

Following its stay at NSTL, the exhibit will be displayed in the Thomas M. Evans Special Exhibits Gallery of the National Museum of Natural History in the Smithsonian Institution.

"Deep Ocean Photography" has previously been exhibited in San Diego, Chicago and New Orleans.

The NSTL Visitors Center is open each Monday through Friday, excluding holidays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bay-Waveland Kiwanis Club organized

A new Bay-Waveland Kiwanis Club has been organized at a recent meeting in the Gulf National Bank attended by some 25 local business and professional men.

Final steps in the club's organization were directed by Speegle Berry, field service representative of Kiwanis International.

Berry also explained the functions of the various officers, and the methods of administering the club, and carrying out its community service programs.

Rev. Charles E. Clark of 1912 Arnold St., Waveland, pastor of First Assembly of God Church, was named president of the club.

Other officers include Bailey, owner of Bailey Electric; vice president; and Randy Tartavouille, funeral director. The total Kiwanis membership is with Riemann's Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis, secretary-treasurer.

The new club is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Gulfport.

Chairman of the sponsoring committee who attended the organizational meeting is Milton Sowell.

The first act of the new club was to appoint a special committee to arrange for a charter night program Saturday, August 29.

Weekly meetings of the new Bay-Waveland Kiwanis Club will be on Thursdays at 7 p.m.

The newly-formed club is one of nearly 7,800 such groups which are located in 69 countries of the free world. The total Kiwanis membership is with Riemann's Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis, secretary-treasurer.

Specifically, Kiwanis clubs meet weekly for fellowship, inspirational programs, and summary reports of club activities.

Their service and administrative work is accomplished through committees in the areas of club meeting, membership growth and education, youth services, citizenship services, support of spiritual aims, sponsored youth (Circle K International Clubs — the collegiate service organization sponsored by Kiwanis and Key Clubs — the high school service organization sponsored by Kiwanis), and major emphasis programs.

Most of the committee work is done in the evening or on Saturdays.

Kiwanis is an integral part of the service club movement which has been called a phenomenon of the 20th Century and a major contribution of the United States and Canada to the culture of the western world.

 Police Report *****

Matt Mathews, 24, of St. Bay St. Louis was arrested last Sunday and charged with possession of one pound of marijuana.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said Mathews was arrested in his upstairs apartment on Main Street in Bay St. Louis across from the county courthouse behind the law firm of Favre, Denin and Scaffidi.

Bond was set at $1,500. Mathews is scheduled to appear before Justice Court Judge John Chevis July 28.

FUGITIVE

A Shoreline Park resident arrested by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Monday for possession of stolen property was later found to be a parole violator from Jefferson Parish, La. and also wanted for car theft in Georgia.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said no bond has been set for Michael Timothy Catledge, 23, of Lake Street.

Sheriff's Department Investigator Delbert Seay stated Deputy Dennis Tartavouille spotted a car driven by Catledge and checked the license plate number through the National Crime Information Center. The car was reported to have been stolen in Georgia, Seay said.

The investigator said a high speed chase for several miles lead Tartavouille to Catledge's residence.

"He ran into the house and Tartavouille called for assistance," Seay said.

Upon arrival of Seay, the two officers kicked in the door and arrested Catledge who was hiding in the attic, Seay stated.

Thursday was a very active day for those of us making the annual Farm City Tour sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock County Farm Bureau and Hancock County Extension Service.

The only objection anyone seemed to mention was the fact that it was rather hot when we were off the bus.

Our first stop was at McLeod Park, where Park Commissioner Mary Caillier provided cold drinks and donuts.

A lot of interest was shown when we visited a peanut farm. Many of us 'city folks' know very little about farming. This was evident when one lady wanted to see the 'peanut trees.'

Oil drilling activity continues in Hancock, as evidenced by a very large drilling site we passed after the peanut farm.

One of the most interesting stops was the visit to Ladner Farms on Highway 53 in northwest Hancock.

Everyone was amazed at the scope of the operation, which is headquartered in Hancock and spreads as far away as Wyoming.

A sandwich lunch served by the Farm Bureau staff followed by ice cold watermelon really hit the spot at the Ladner Farm stop.

Dickie Joe Ladner sure has a fine operation and everyone was talking all the way back to Waveland and Bay St. Louis about how they were impressed.

The so many automated operations used for the cattle operation at Enshallah Ranch, Pearl River County, part of Ladner's operations caught the eye of everyone.

We even found out that milk comes from cows at Keith Shaw's new dairy farm. It was sort of a homecoming for L.J. Breaux, chairman of the trip, as he was in the dairy business for 18 years.

Everyone was wanting a sample, which of course was not available as the milk has to be processed before drinking.

An interesting item found out on the trip was the fact that cotton is growing in Hancock County.

John Smith, county agent was very proud to show the two-acre plot planted on the farm of Ray Cuevas. It's part of a study to see how it grows in Hancock and if affected by the boll weevil.

Smith said there are 14 two-acre plots in the county.

One person who usually makes the tour was not available this year and that was county historian, Norton Naas, as he had a meeting in Jackson.

Smith and Breaux did a fine job explaining the farming operations in the county.

One item of very good news learned on the trip was that there is a lot of interest being shown on crayfish production possibilities in the county.

We were informed there should be several test operations next year. I can taste those mud bugs while I type this.

All of us 'city folks' want to thank all our 'country neighbors' for helping us have a wonderful day.

Auto stereo may block life-saving sounds

Those tiny stereo tape players and headsets certainly can make driving a car or a motorcycle more pleasant. But the ear-filling sounds they generate also may make it more dangerous.

The Insurance Information Institute advises motorists and motorcyclists to drive with both their ears and eyes open.

Tape players and radios should not be so loud as to drown out the sounds of police, fire and ambulance sirens, says the Institute. Even annoying traffic sounds like brakes screeching and horns honking can be lifesavers by alerting a driver to a possible emergency situation.

The sound of children playing is another warning that should be audible to motorists driving on streets near school and playground areas.

The Institute urges all motorists to keep these safety tips in mind:

—Yield the right of way to other drivers, even if the other driver is wrong. Failure to yield is the leading factor contributing to accidents in Mississippi.

—Observe the speed limit at all times, and reduce your speed if dangerous road conditions are present.

—Keep a safe distance from the car ahead of you, at least a two-second interval.

—Pay attention to your driving, and watch the road ahead as far as possible. That way you can often spot trouble sooner and take appropriate action.

—If you've been drinking, let someone else do the driving. Alcohol is believed to be a factor in about half of all fatal accidents.

—Use your seat belt. The National Safety Council says that if all passengers in cars did so, at least 12,000 lives would be saved each year.

Alert driving can mean pleasant riding. It can also save your life.

WHAT A TIRE!—Jerry Benigno, executive director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, fits inside the rim of tire on large tractor used by the Ladner Farm during City Farm tour Thursday. The large tractor which can do the work of 300 families, is one of five such vehicles used by the Hancock County based operation, according to Dickie Joe Ladner, owner. The group of 40 'city folk' were very interested in the equipment used in the soybean and cattle operations. Some were even looking for an old inner tube from the tractor tires. The tractors which are four-wheel-drive are mostly driven by women as they have power steering, air conditioning and even tape deck stereos. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

LETTERS TO THE EDITORAuto driver should be responsible for damages, charges

Editor,
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor:

In a recent edition of the Echo I read a letter, written by Mrs. Pepperman of Grosvenor Place regarding an accident on the 700 block of Nicholson.

She brought out some facts as to action taken by the police, or rather not taken, etc.

I reside on the block and came upon the scene after the police arrived. As I understood the situation, the lady driver with her small child was driving north on Nicholson Avenue.

A bee stung the lady on her leg and on her finger when she waved it away. The child was also bitten by the bee.

This caused her to drive slightly off the road where two boys, both about nine years of age, were on their bikes.

These boys were not on the paved road but just off on the side.

The lady's auto just struck the handlebar of one boy's bicycle, which caused him to fall. The bike appeared to be OK but the boy said his side hurt a little.

The other boy was 'knocked' off his bike and the auto rolled over the back wheel demolishing it. This boy appeared to have a brush burn on his knee.

Mobil Medic was called and after looking at the boys, thought injuries may look very light, took them in the ambulance.

I feel that the accident was almost unavoidable with no intent to violate any law.

No action should be made against the driver, but she should pay for repairs to the bikes and the Mobil Medic charges and the hospital charges, if any.

I understand that Mobil Medic charged a fee of $95 for each child.

The short trip from Nicholson Avenue to the hospital results in a total of $190. Is not this a rather high and unreasonable charge for the service rendered to the two boys?

This matter of Mobil Medic charges should be looked into by the city officials.

Your truly,
Jules P. Dimestre

Children's librarian reports successful
Summer Reading program

Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editors:

Through the efforts of many people the summer reading program at the Hancock County Library System was a big success.

The summer reading program is a special event each year and the children look forward to it.

Without the help of volunteers the library could not have a quality reading program, except at the expense of other services.

Because of their help the library system was able to provide summer activities with a minimum of disruption to other services.

Summer reading programs, which are annual events at libraries throughout the nation, reinforce the importance of libraries and the information they provide, thus building a foundation for developing future readers.

CONSUMER REPORT

BILL ALLAIN, ATTORNEY GENERAL

CONSUMER FRAUD
AND THE ELDERLY

Attorney General Bill Allain notes that consumer fraud can be a burden to all Mississippi consumers, but that the burden falls most heavily on those on fixed incomes—senior citizens.

Allain stated that older people are usually dependent on fixed incomes, their recuperative powers are greatly diminished when they become victims of consumer fraud. A successful fraud can wipe out a victim's entire life's savings.

Mail order, business opportunity, energy saving devices, home improvement, insurance and pre-need funeral merchandise are all special areas where older Americans become easy prey. Because senior citizens are less mobile, they frequently purchase items by mail.

Older people are often reluctant complainers and when they do decide to file a complaint, they don't always remember what they ordered, when they ordered it, or the cost. If the business is a fly-by-night establishment, it is unlikely that the complaint can be successfully resolved.

Another area of frequent complaint is the work-at-home or business opportunity scheme. Senior citizens often see this as a chance to increase their small incomes. Ads claiming to be able to increase your income by $2,000 to $3,000 per month are very inviting to a person living on a small Social Security check.

Although the initial investment rarely exceeds $35, these schemes rarely bring in the income claimed and cost the elderly several million dollars annually.

Home improvement schemes are also used frequently on the elderly. Unscrupulous home repair firms defraud senior citizens out of thousands of dollars by merely insisting that they have unneeded repairs done.

Unfortunately, these deals are often offered by gypsies who have no intention of doing the work. They simply collect money and move on to the next town or state.

Older people also become victims of door-to-door solicitation and sales of cemetery plots, grave markers, and other burial products.

They are unaware of the frequently misleading statements being made to them about costs, location, and services provided. In the sale of insurance, especially covering special illnesses, some companies and agents exaggerate the benefits of their policies and tend to use scare tactics.

These are just a few consumer problems faced, on a daily basis, by older Americans. For additional information contact Attorney General Bill Allain, Consumer Protection Division, P.O. Box 220, Jackson, Mississippi 39206.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I'm thinking about promoting sales in my store on the basis of "low overhead, lower prices." I'll offer limited lines, no frills or expensive displays and no advertising. Tightening Up.

Dear TU: You probably will need to get used to tightening up quite a bit, for the odds are very much against you.

In the first place, if you have no displays and no advertising who'll know about you being in business?

And the word of mouth won't spread very far if you have limited lines and few frills. For in today's marketplace consumers want frills and variety.

The merchants who get the business are those who offer complete lines and through volume selling, promoted by advertising, keep prices low.

In an isolated market you might be able to hand on to enough business to stay open, but your operation would be very vulnerable to an aggressive competitor.

In order to keep prices low you will have to cut out a portion of the ordinary overhead, but advertising cannot be one of them. For advertising is not optional, it is a necessary expense, especially if the low budget outlet is in a less than choice location.

And with the high cost of transportation, who knows what a choice location will be in the future. Convenience to drivers may give way to "within walking distance."

But either selling-point will have to be supplied with regular advertising.

So you might save a little back to finance a going out of business sale if you don't plan to promote regularly.

One question that has always intrigued me is why anyone who thinks he wants to be in business would have your attitude towards advertising.

My theory is that you don't really understand or want to run a business.

You are like a professional man who doesn't like to practice, or a craftsman who doesn't want to follow his trade. All should really be doing something else.

CRIME: A GROWING MENACE

"The People's War Against Crime" was the headline on the cover story of a recent issue of a national news magazine.

The U.S. News and World Report article led off with these words: "Fed up with being victimized by crime, harried Americans are doubling up their fists and fighting back."

The article explained how neighborhood "watch teams" are helping to decrease the crime rates in many communities, and how sales of burglar alarms and other home security items are booming.

But, above all, the article reflected what the pollsters are also rediscovering about the American people: There is growing awareness of crime as a major item of concern.

Fear is one of the basic human emotions and it's easy to see why:

—This year, almost one out of three families in the United States will suffer some type of crime.

—Offenses of all types rose by 10 percent from 1975 to 1980, and violent crimes jumped by 13 percent.

—Robbery increased by 20 percent, rape by 9 percent, aggravated assault by 8 percent and murder by 7 percent.

—Among property crimes, burglary showed a rise of 14 percent and larceny 8 percent.

One of the most startling bits of information in the latest FBI statistics is that reported crime increased not only in the big cities, but also in suburbs and rural areas.

The fact is that any area may be hit by crime.

The upsurge in criminal activity is being met with resistance by the people themselves. In many areas, civilian patrols in CB-equipped vehicles keep watch. Individuals and businesses are turning to more sophisticated means of protecting themselves, including around-the-clock electronic surveillance.

That Americans are being forced to turn to such means is testimony to the impact of crime. One problem faced by lawmakers in an era of declining budgets is how best to join the fight against crime.

At the federal level, some proposals are being considered to give the people an edge in the struggle against criminals. These proposals cover a wide range of territory.

Hopefully, the attitude of the people to strike back in this important area will be helpful as the fight continues. In the final analysis, it may very well be that the will of the people to prevail carries more weight than any federal program.

Bar Association presumes Constitutional authority with judicial selection vetos

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, entitled "The Democratic Character of the Judicial Selection Process" by J. David Alexander, a PhD candidate in government and constitutional history at Claremont Graduate School who has recently been appointed to a fellowship in Public Research, Syndicated's Publius Fellows Program, is furnished to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated of Claremont, Calif.

In filling the vacancy created on the Supreme Court by the resignation of Justice Stewart, President Reagan nominated Judge Sandra D. O'Connor to the Bench without consulting the American Bar Association.

In so doing, Mr. Reagan has raised an important question: does any private organization or individual have the right to circumscribe the President's choice of a nominee to the nation's highest court?

This question has a special poignancy with reference to the ABA. Prior to the incumbency of President Truman, presidents customarily sought the advice of members of their administrations, their close friends, party allies, Congressional leaders, sitting and retired members of the Court, and sometimes even groups interested in impending or anticipated litigation, when making nominations to the Court.

As early as 1908, the ABA found this selection process to be defective. In that year its Committee on Professional Ethics issued a report stating that, "It is the duty of the Bar to endeavor to prevent political considerations from outweighing judicial fitness in the selection of judges."

In 1945 the ABA established a Committee on Federal Judiciary to enable it to discharge its perceived "duty."

So persuasively did the ABA assert the competency of the Committee to evaluate nominees to the Bench that by the end of Mr. Truman's administration the Committee had become a significant agent in the selection process.

The stature attained by the Committee was enhanced in 1969 when President Nixon authorized it to evaluate candidates to the Supreme Court in advance of their nomination.

This, in effect, accorded the ABA a veto in the selection of justices. It was an extraordinary delegation of constitutional power to a private organization.

But the full weight of the ABA's interest and "duty" in the selection process was not felt until two years later. At that time Attorney General John Mitchell wrote an angry letter to Chairman Lawrence Walsh of the Committee informing him not only that President Nixon would no longer seek the Committee's advice on nominees in advance of a formal nomination, but that he would not ask their advice at all.

Undaunted, the Committee promptly evaluated Mr. Nixon's next two nominees to the Court anyway — Justices Powell and Rehnquist — and forwarded its evaluations directly to Chairman James Eastland of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Since 1945 the Committee had always acted under the auspices of the Justice Department. With this unprecedented action the Committee signified its presumption of an independent status in the selection process.

This battle represents the growing influence of a private organization — the ABA — in the federal judicial selection process. The legal profession has assumed an ad hoc constitutional status in nominating justices to the Bench. The ABA defends this role as an exercise of its public obligations.

The ABA seeks special requirements for judicial impartiality (legal and judicial knowledge and judicial temperament). It contends that its professional expertise in the law better acquaints it with the standards of judicial impartiality than does the political acumen of the President and Senate.

For this reason the ABA presumes that it can supply knowledge unavailable to political leaders, and hence should be an instrument in the selection process.

The ABA's assertion of what can only be called an unwritten constitutional power poses a serious threat to the democratic character of the selection process.

This is not to say that in making their preferences known, private groups such as congressional lobbyists, the National Organization of Women, or the Moral Majority are acting undemocratically.

Their actions take place in full view of the public and in the course of the ordinary operations of the legislative and judicial process.

The ABA, to the contrary, seeks to exercise its role behind the scenes where public policy is made, and with official sanction.

One of the fundamental principles of American constitutionalism and of free government is that the men who discharge public duties must be accountable to the people.

Where the President possesses the exclusive duty to nominate justices to the Court, and the Senate the exclusive power to confirm them, the selection process is democratic. Both the President and Senate are responsible to the people.

If instead the ABA exerts an ad hoc constitutional prerogative to veto the nomination of candidates to the Court, the process of selection is made immune to democratic pressures. To the extent that the ABA exercises a veto, the process becomes undemocratic.

The President has already shown his determination not to cede his constitutional responsibility to the ABA. He has demonstrated his appreciation for the democratic character of the selection process by withholding from the ABA an inordinate role in that process.

It remains now for the Senate to act with the same respect for its constitutional authority in considering Judge O'Connor.

The Senate, above all its Judiciary Committee, must assure that the ABA, although free to send its advice, has no claim to veto this — or any subsequent — nomination.

Heavy equipment firms merge

A new company, Orleans Coastal Equipment Company, Inc., has been formed through merger of three Mississippi and Louisiana firms engaged

"We will serve our Hancock County customers through our Gulfport office," said Al Greene, the new company's vice president in charge of the Gulfport facility.

Orleans Coastal has acquired Orleans Equipment Company, Hammond Equipment Company and Coastal Machinery Co., according to Fred L. O'Neal, president and chief executive officer of Orleans Coastal.

The new company will operate equipment dealerships in New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Hammond, Gulfport and Hattiesburg.

Administrative headquarters will be located in Springfield, La.

The five Orleans Coastal outlets are franchise dealers for John Deere equipment. Individual outlets also handle P & H cranes; Prentice Log Loaders, Hyster trailers and compactors and other lines of industrial and agricultural equipment.

Paul F. Sharp is vice president in charge of the equipment rental division. Charles E. Hodges is vice president of national and special accounts.

"We are confident that economic prospects for the central Gulf Coast are extremely bright through the 80s and 90s," said O'Neal.

"All indicators point to population growth, increasing personal incomes and accelerating industrial and commercial development, all at rates exceeding the nation as a whole. We are positioning ourselves to meet the needs and capitalize on the opportunities which these developments afford by offering maximum continuity of equipment, parts, supplies and service to contractors, industrial managers and others operating across the Louisiana-Mississippi coast."

Weather outlook

Mississippi farmers can expect above normal temperatures and below normal rainfall for the next 30 days, according to the National Weather Service outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Daily highs are expected to reach the low 90s, while lows will be about 70, say agrometeorologists at the Mid-South Farm Weather Service in Stoneville who prepare the forecasts.

Rainfall for July 15 to Aug. 15 averages about 3.5 inches in most parts of the state, except for rainfall of close to seven inches near the coast. Scattered showers and thunderstorms can be expected periodically during the next 30 days, and some areas could receive heavy downpours.

Conditions for field work will be good, say the weather experts. Spraying will be aided by fairly light winds. Dry conditions will reduce dew formation and thus help hay cutters. However, most farmers will have to practice moisture conservation practices.

Poultrymen should be prepared for at least several days of very high temperatures and humidities combined with light winds. Without precautions, such days could result in extreme mortality rates among birds.

Beach Problem.....

parking situation at the intersection of Nicholson Avenue and Beach Boulevard.

He said the cars park bumper to bumper.

"There have been a number of minor rear-end accidents but one of these days a child is going to be killed because they came out from between parked cars and couldn't be seen," he said.

Aldermen Barbara Rappold and Louie Smolensky agreed motorists cannot see around corners of the intersections because of the parked cars.

Mike Cahn, a neighbor of Viguerie who lives on Beach Boulevard, listed the problems he has had with the cars, people and trash near his house.

Cahn stated he picks up at least two cases of beer bottles every week in front of his house.

Also he said he knows of two occasions when beach visitors climbed into his pool for a swim.

Cahn said a go-cart was once stolen from his garage and beer drinking teenagers sat on the hull of his boat in the front yard July 4th exploding fire crackers.

Both Viguerie and Cahn police patrol the beach more often and enforce the no glass container ordinance.

Both suggested a bond be posted to obtain a fire permit to start a bonfire on the beach.

Aldermen agreed that was a good idea and decided a $25 bond should be set to obtain the permit. After the area is inspected and approved the money would be refunded they said.

Gex suggested a foot patrolman walk the beach at different intervals during the day to enforce the glass ordinance.

Smolensky said cars should be towed and arrests should be made to show that the city is serious about enforcing the no parking and the glass ordinance.

The aldermen agreed that word of the arrests might lead to stopping some of the problems occurring on the beach.

In other business, the board heard from James Lagasse, president of the Civic Association, and agreed to donate the use of the Waveland City Hall to the association for 48 hours during the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon scheduled for the Labor Day Weekend.

They also agreed to let the organization use the Garfield Lander Memorial Pier for a fireworks display Sunday of that weekend.

The board donated $500 for the fireworks display.

ETV Brief

MILITARY EXPANSION

The cost and consequences of expanding the military are discussed on "Firing Line" with William F. Buckley Jr. at 10 p.m., Sunday, July 26, on the Mississippi ETV Network. The program marks the beginning of "Firing Line's" eleventh season on public television.

Participating with Buckley in "The Debate on American Security" are Richard Barnet, co-founder of the Institute for Policy Studies; Paul Nitze of the Committee on the Present Danger; and James Chace, managing editor of Foreign Affairs, a quarterly publication sponsored by the Council on Foreign Relations.

Barnet argues that the U.S. must do everything in its power to prevent war, and that by rearming, the U.S. is increasing the likelihood of such an occurrence.

Nitze disagrees, stating that "unless one has a military capability that is adequate to deter the threat that one can see developing, one is really in very deep trouble."

Chace is concerned with the effect of the defense budget on the economy. What the U.S. has to look at, he says, is "what kind of military spending can this economy sustain without the concomitant inflation that I suspect is likely to result and the continued lack of productivity."

And acting in response to a decision by the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, the Legislature adopted several major changes to the state's justice court system.

Common Cause singled out and commended ten legislators for their efforts during the legislative session in trying to work for these issues. They are Rep. Gerald Blessey; Biloxi, and newly elected mayor of that city; Rep. Tommy Campbell, Yazoo City; Rep. Eric Clark, Taylorsville; Rep. J. P. Compretta, Bay St. Louis; Rep. Dennis Dollar, Gulfport; Sen. Ed Ellington, Jackson; Sen. Rick Lambert, Hattiesburg; Rep. Betty Jane Long, Meridian; Sen. Martin Smith, Poplarville; and Rep. John Hampton

Stennis, Jackson.

The group also had some commendations for Governor William Winter and Lt. Governor Brad Dye.

According to Nash, "at different times during the 90-day session, these twelve individuals led the fight to gain passage of strong legislation to make government more open and responsive to Mississippians."

1981 Mississippi House Votes

Open Meetings-1

Once the Senate had passed the open meetings legislation, SB 2113 (Senate Vote #1), the House Judiciary "B" Committee considered it and approved the measure, but not before removing one of the major features of the bill—the prohibition on public officials voting behind closed doors. When the bill was called up for House floor debate, Rep. Eric Clark (Taylorsville) offered a compromise amendment that would still allow voting in secret, but would require the minutes of the closed meeting to include a roll call vote on any action taken in the meeting. This amendment was adopted by a vote of 66-52 (CC position - YES). Without this amendment, public officials would have been able to vote on certain subjects in secret, without their constituents ever knowing the position they took on the issues.

Open Meetings-2

Vote on final passage of SB 2113. The bill was adopted by a margin of 97-22 (CC position - YES). Note this vote and the next one.

Open Meetings-3

On the day following the vote to pass the open meetings bill, the opponents of the legislation attempted to use a procedural motion to bottle up the bill and kill it. This vote occurred on a motion by Rep. Dennis Dollar (Gulfport) to kill that procedural motion and thus send the bill back to the Senate. Dollar's motion was adopted by a one vote margin, 58-57. (CC position - YES). Rep. Perrin Grissom (Leland) led the opposition with this procedural motion on the pretense of wanting to reconsider the bill to offer some clarifying amendments. The day before however, during the debate on the bill, Grissom had offered an amendment to gut the measure and kill it. That's his definition of clarification.

Public Records-4

February 12 was the deadline for the full House to consider House bills reported by a House committee. The public record's bill was House Bill 672 and was set for debate on that deadline day. In an effort to avoid a discussion on the merits of the legislation, the opponents worked to get the representatives to adjourn before debating the public records bill; a move that would kill it. This first vote to adjourn failed 48-62 (CC position - NO) and is a good indication of the strength of the issue of public records had in the House. The next vote was not so good however.

Public Records-5

This time, the opponents, led by Rep. Sonny Merideth (Greenville) were successful in adjourning the House, by a vote of 60-53 (CC position - NO). After the first vote (#4 above), Merideth looked for a way to get the necessary majority of representatives to vote to adjourn. He found his votes when the House began discussing a controversial bill dealing with sentencing of persons convicted of capital crimes. A number of representatives, including all 15 black members, were strongly opposed to this legislation, and Merideth struck a deal with them: vote to adjourn while discussing the bill and thus kill it. The only problem was that the public records bill was after the capital crimes measure. The deal was struck, however, and the House adjourned.

County-Unit Road System-6

One of the major abuses at the county government level is the way in which county roads are maintained and constructed. Called the "beat system" because the road money is divided equally among the five supervisors for them to use exclusively within their beats (or districts as they see fit), it has led to abuse and corruption on a large scale. Mississippi spends more money maintaining and constructing county roads, per registered vehicle, than any other state in the country. An amendment offered by Rep. James Price (Quitman) to a highway funding bill, would have abolished the beat system and replaced it with the "county-unit system", which requires the five supervisors to spend the money within the county where the need is, with regard for beat lines. While the system is many times more efficient than the beat system, it sharply reduces the power of supervisors and for that reason, they fought this amendment with all they had. The amendment passed in the House by a surprising vote of 70-16 (CC position - YES), but was removed by the Senate. A compromise reached later by a conference committee and approved by both Houses requires the county unit system beginning in 1984 unless the supervisors vote in an open meeting to remain with the beat system.

Mississippi Ethics Commission-7

Vote on the appropriation for the Mississippi Ethics Commission. This bill contained the money to fund the operation for the commission for the next fiscal year and was passed 109-10 (CC position - YES).

LEGISLATURE—Page 8A

ETV Brief

CATFISH GLUT

Mississippi's catfish industry has grown remarkably in recent years, and according to John Winfield, marketing reporter for "Farmweek," more catfish may be being produced than can be sold.

Marketing problems catfish farmers may face in the near future is the subject of inquiry on "Farmweek" at 7:30 p.m., Monday, July 27, on Mississippi ETV. Reporter James Booth will investigate these problems on the show.

Also on the program will be a feature on state 4-Hers "taking over the state legislature" according to "Farmweek" host Tyson Gair. Weather information and news of interest to rural families are included in every "Farmweek" program.

"Farmweek" is a co-production of the Mississippi Center for Educational Television and the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

1981 Mississippi Senate Votes

Open Meetings - 1

Vote to pass Senate Bill 2113. This bill was approved by a margin of 45-2 (CC position - YES). It was designed to strengthen Mississippi's open meetings law. The legislation as passed by the Senate would have restricted secret meetings to a few topics listed in the bill (personnel discussions, litigation, etc.) and would have prohibited public officials from voting on matters behind closed doors. The current law allows secret meetings for any reason and votes behind closed doors. After this vote, the bill went to the House (See House votes #1-3) where it was amended and passed. The next step occurred in the Senate when the Senators had to either concur in the House changes and send the bill to the Governor or reject the changes and send the bill to a conference committee where the differences between the two Houses would be dealt with. Although the House amendments weakened the bill, its provisions were still strong enough to stop the major abuses with the present law. For that reason, and because it was clear from discussions with supporters of the measure in the House that sending the bill to conference would kill it, Common Cause joined with the Senate proponents and urged concurrence of the House amendments.

Open Meetings - 2

Vote on a motion by Sen. Charles Ray Nix (Batesville) to send the bill to a conference committee. The motion was defeated 13-23. (CC position - NO) Rather than vote against the open meetings bill on final passage (Vote #1 above), the opponents of the legislation waited for a procedural motion to try and kill it. This vote to send the bill to conference committee was their way of trying to kill the bill.

bill while appearing to support open meetings; that is they argued that the House had weakened the bill too much, so a conference committee was needed to try and strengthen it. But before this vote, the supporters of open meetings read aloud in the floor a letter from a representative who had worked hard in the House to pass the bill and who wrote in the letter that a vote to send the bill to a conference committee would kill it because the House leadership (who was opposed to the bill) would probably never appoint a committee, or would appoint one that would never meet.

Open Meetings - 3

Motion by Sen. Martin Smith (Poplarville) to concur in the House amendments and send the bill to the Governor for him to sign it. The motion passed 31-6. (CC position - YES). Note the number of senators who switched from their position on vote #2 above.

Open Meetings - 4

Vote on a motion by Sen. Martin Smith to kill a procedural motion by Sen. Bill Minor (Holly Springs). Minor's motion was a last minute attempt to bottle the bill up in the Senate and kill it. Sen. Smith's motion prevailed by a slim 25-24 margin. (CC position - YES). Again, note the difference in this vote and vote #3 above. The votes on #1 and #3 above occurred on final passage of the legislation and are the ones generally reported by the news media. Votes #2 and #4 occurred on procedural motions that are not as widely reported, but were made to kill the legislation.

Mississippi Ethics Commission - 5

Vote on the appropriation bill for the Mississippi Ethics Commission. This bill contains the money to fund the operation for the commission for next year and passed by a margin of 49-3. (CC position - YES).

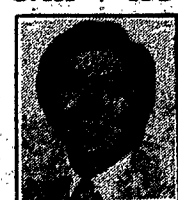

Judicial Reform - 6

One of the major pieces of legislation passed by the Legislature was an overhaul of the state's justice court system. The initiative was in response to a ruling by the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals that the present justice court system was unconstitutional. One of the court's main complaints was the method of funding the salaries of the judges. Currently the judges are paid from the fines they charge people with a system the Court of Appeals said was a conflict of interest. To remedy the situation the House passed a bill that would have forced the justice court judges to be paid a set salary by the county, effective October 1, 1982. But when the bill got to the Senate, Sen. Bill Minor (Holly Springs) offered an amendment to delay the effective date of the salary provision until January 1, 1984. Minor's motion passed 24-22. (CC position - NO) Supporters of the 1982 date believed the Court of Appeal would not give the state until 1984 to comply with the mandates of the court's decision. The justice court judges were strongly opposed to the salary system because under the fee system they usually receive much more money than would be allowed under the salary system.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES DAVID LAWTON III

Presbyterian vows unite Lawton, Lackey

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny F. Lackey of Long Beach, announce the marriage of their daughter, Nancy Lorraine Lackey to James David Lawton III of Gulfport, son of James David Lawton Jr. and Mrs. Elizabeth Jensen of Alamosa, Colo.

Miss Lackey, whose mother is the former Miss Sally Russ, is a 1980 graduate of All Saints Episcopal School, Vicksburg. She is now attending Southern Oklahoma State University, Weatherford, Okla.

Her maternal grandparents are Mrs. Ollie Russ of Long Beach and the late Charles A. Russ Jr. Paternal grandparents are Mrs. Nancy Lackey of Walnut Springs, Tex., and the late W. Henry Lackey.

Mr. Lawton is a 1979 graduate of Harrison Central High School, Gulfport. He is now employed with Paladen Geophysical Company.

His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Garris of Antonito, Colo. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James David Lawton attending from Albuquerque, N.M.

The wedding was solemnized Saturday, July 11, at 6 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Long Beach, with the Rev. Stanley Smathers officiating at the double ring ceremony. The bride's ring was her maternal grandmother's.

Vows were exchanged before the altar lighted by candles in brass candelabra forming an arch over the pulpit. Baskets of gladioli, mums, and stock were on each side. Pairs of tall spiral brass candelabra entwined with English ivy formed the background.

Preceding the ceremony white tapers were lighted by James Kidd and Johnny Lackey II.

Mrs. Frank Alexander, organist, played the traditional wedding marches; processional and recessional. Mrs. Wayne Ward sang 'Whiter Thou Goest' and 'The Wedding Prayer.'

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white crepe designed with a fine English neckline, shirt overlay and cathedral train edged with beaded reemboiled Alencon lace. The long fitted sleeves which ended in points at the wrist were appliqued with matching lace. An Alencon lace cap encrusted with seed pearls held the cathedral length veil edged with identical pearl reemboiled Alencon lace. Her veil was hand designed by her aunt, Mrs. Katherine Turley, of Long Beach.

She carried an arrangement of stephanotis, white roses, lily-of-the-valley, baby's breath and asparagus fern, centered with a white orchid corsage.

The bride's jewelry was an heirloom necklace of her great-great grandmother, Mrs. Jerome Daniels.

Miss Vicki Moody, of Lafayette La., was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Nordgreen, of Los Banos, Calif., sister of the bride; Shelly Hogue, Long Beach; Katherine Russ, Pearlinton, cousin of the bride; Shelly Lawton, Gulfport, sister of the groom.

The bridesmaids wore original gowns designed and created by Mrs. Charles Russ III, aunt of the bride. They were blue satin ante-bellum gowns trimmed with white lace.

The bridesmaids carried bridal chambersticks encircled with spring floral arrangements.

Miss Kadie Lynn Nordgreen, Los Banos, Calif., served her aunt as flower girl. Her dress was designed to match the bridesmaids. David Boyet, Bogaloussa, La., served as ring bearer.

Tony Dupree of Gulfport served the groom as best man.

His other attendants were John Seay and Jimmy Kidd cousin of the bride, Gulfport; Johnny Lackey II brother of the bride; and Ken Ward, cousin of the bride; both of Long Beach, Mississippi.

Charles Russ III, uncle of the bride, and Lesley Russ, cousin of the bride both of Pearlinton, served as ushers.

The mother of the bride chose an ice blue formal gown with an embroidered lace bodice and matching shawl with a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother wore a teal green formal accoridian pleated gown and a corsage of ivory rose buds.

A reception following the ceremony was held at the home of the bride.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Joseph Cassidy, Arlington, Texas, aunt of the bride.

The four-tiered, columned wedding cake, topped with the traditional bride and groom, featuring a waterfall fountain between the tiers and it custom designed, made and served for the bride by her cousin, Mrs. Terry D. Clark, Houston, Tex. The groom's cake was served by Mrs. Harold Finkle, Long Beach.

Also assisting at the reception were Mrs. Lewis Ward and Mrs. James Kidd, both aunts of the bride.

After a short wedding trip to Disney World in Orlando, Fla., the couple will reside in Fort Walton, Fla.

There's an Answer!

by Norman
Vincent Peale

Life is too short

Q. I'm 36 years old and am a fulltime homemaker and mother of three by choice. I am active in church and community activities. Although I don't think of myself as depressed, the past year I feel an increasing bitterness toward God for making a lifetime so short.

I find myself crying after the children leave for school or after an impulsive kiss from my 5 year old. When my parents arrive for a visit I cry, and when they leave I am sad and angry because their time on earth is probably shorter than mine. How can I set these tearful sessions aside so we can enjoy the time we do have together, however short it may be?

A. I, too, wish that God saw fit to make our lifetime longer. Anyone who loves life as you seem to do has moments when such regret as you express comes to mind. But one reason we love life is the exquisite experiences it brings, especially within the family. Why not just love each day and thank God for giving that day to you. Leave the long future in God's hands. He knows best.

Perhaps you will find help in our booklet How to Have a Good Day Every Day which is on its way to you. Any reader wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Will he wait?

Q. Hi, I've been wanting to talk to someone for a long time now, but there was no one. Then I came across you guys in the newspaper, and I must say, "What a relief!" Up to now I've always had older boyfriends, and for once I've found someone my own age. He's devoted his whole life to me, and I guess I'm just confused and scared. We are only 17 and I don't want to get married until I'm 26 or older. I want to more or less be free but still be with him. Do you think if he loves me he'll wait to marry me at age 26?

A. If he doesn't love you when you're 26, then you will find a real nice boy who will love you. You seem an attractive, personable, sensible girl and you are so right in not wanting to get married at 17. If he knows what is good for him this boy will wait. But if he doesn't then "Mr. Right" will come along later.

Dangerous answer

Q. Recently in your column you answered a letter from a girl who asked if it was all right to read a book on witchcraft. You told her it was all right if she didn't take it seriously.

A. What I said was that a Christian believer would not be hurt by a book on witchcraft if it were read in a scholarly fashion — in other words, to be informed on the subject. I too believe that Satanic influences are strong in the world and we must be on guard. But the person who has real faith in God is protected, for Satan is no match for the power of God.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL—Members of the annual joint First Baptist and Christ Episcopal Vacation Bible School celebrate completion of the session with a picnic at Buccaneer

State Park last Friday. Teachers and students recite the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

HAVE OTHERS BEEN BLESSED because you have lived? When you have departed this earthly scene, will it be remembered that you tried to help others as you passed this way? Realizing that we only pass this way once, let us do all the good we can, to all the people we can, as long as we can, in every way we can!

With this column this scribe has been coming to the readers of this and other newspapers every week for some nine years. While the response from readers has been most gratifying, I have never thought of myself as having any particular gift or ability as a writer.

That has never been my purpose or reason for writing. This weekly devotional-commentary was born of a suggestion by an editor friend of mine, along with a fervent desire which lived in my heart to help, encourage and inspire others in whatever way I may have opportunity.

We all need the help of one another as we make our way through this world. We need one another's prayers and words of encouragement.

Every time I prayerfully and meditatively sit down to write, there is always present a certain thrill in the hopeful prospect that what God gives me to say may lighten the load and brighten the road; lift up the spirit and encourage the heart of some weary traveler along life's rugged pathway.

Discouragement can be a dangerous and deadly enemy. After all, these are not ordinary times in which we live. Our problems are not ordinary problems. We sorely need the friendly counsel of those who share the way with us.

Thomas Paine, American patriot, described the days of the American Revolution, in which he lived, as "times which try men's souls."

The apostle Paul said: "This know also, that in the last days, perilous times shall come..." II Tim. 3:1.

Millions, some of whom we pass day by day, are in the valley of despair, and need a lift to the sun-lit mountain top of God's tender love and mercy. Maybe you can help this neighbor! You will both be blessed by it!

There are always some out on life's sea who have suffered "shipwreck" as a result of some misfortune. Pointing such to the Lord, the Psalmist said, "He is a very present help in trouble" - Ps. 46:1.

Again, the Psalmist declares: "From the ends of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed: lead me to the rock that is higher than I. For thou hast been a shelter for me, and a strong tower from the enemy" - Ps. 61: 1-2.

In such beautiful scripture passages are found the real thrill of sharing a message of hope and inspiration with some one who may be in great need...and who knows who that person may be today, or tomorrow!

Your words may be as a lone voice "crying in the wilderness," but if that voice, as frail as we may think it is, proves to be the timely word that helps a fellow pilgrim making his way through a wilderness of difficult experiences, that within itself is reward enough!

A man never stands so tall as when he reaches down to offer his hand to some one who has stumbled and fell.
